

Haiku Entries:

When I visit the
Ogden Farmers' Library
Stories sing to me

Lilacs are blooming
A symphony of flowers
White and Purple joy

Don't know you, haiku
I don't like you much, haiku
But now I get you.

Stillness and cloudshapes
Fragrant dreams of nothingness
Do you remember?

Mom! Mom! Make her stop!
It's not fair! She started it!
Go talk to your dad.

LAUGHTER
Giggles fill my heart
Squeaky swingset as they fly
Bless their innocence

There is a picture
Crayoned by little sister
Remembering joy

A child's laughter
Fills my soul like red balloons
Lifting...float away

Do you have helmet?
Your cell phone? Where will you bike?
Mom! I'm fourteen now!

"Spring haiku"
Geese are flying home,
A robin hops in the snow,
Springtime must be here.

Can I? Can I? Mom?
No. Not now. It's getting late.
Dad? Can I? Can I?

"Restored"
Served his sentence well
Freedom in the light of day
Smiling in new life.

Arctic fox going
Down to the salmon river
Dancing on the way

Watching pine trees touch the stars
Whispering gently

FOOTBALLKU

Down hill, I turn and get hit
FUMBLE! Ouch! That hurt.

I smell a pancake
Breakfast must be coming soon
Then my dad calls me

TREEKU

Touch their bumpy shells.

THE RAIN

Beautiful Dolphins
Swimming with turquoise waves,
Salt was in the air.

Bleeding hearts will bloom
When they think the time is right
The worlds in full bloom!

Alone in my big new room
I cry out for mother
